

North Dakota Tobacco-Free Parks

More North Dakota communities are following a national trend of going tobacco-free in their public parks. Tobacco-free parks are cleaner, greener, and safer places for families to enjoy healthy recreation. Tobacco-free parks set an example that will keep the next generation free from all forms of tobacco. Currently, 59 cities and counties in North Dakota have a tobacco-free park policy. If you would like to help make your parks tobacco-free, contact your local public health unit at www.breathend.com.
